My therapeutic orientation can be described as: (e.g., traditional, behavior modification, biblical, etc...please elaborate). I use classic behavior modification using consistency and structured rewards and consequences. I encouraged parents to be less emotional in their actions with their children and to set clear and specific expectations for their behavior.

My greatest therapeutic strength is: The ability to develop a strong working relationship with both the parents and the children I work with.

I am married/unmarried/currently separated/divorced. If married currently, is this your first marriage? If not, how many previous marriages? How long have you been married to your current spouse? I have been married for 25 years to my high school sweetheart!

I have children of my own. yes/no. Their ages are: They live with me/my ex/they are emancipated. I have 2 daughters, age 23 and 21. The oldest has graduated from college, is working on an MBA and getting married this year. She lives completely independently and has worked since graduating from high school. My youngest daughter is a Junior at Wofford College and other than providing for her tuition/dorm and books, she lives independently and has held a job since graduating from high school.

I have registered with www.rosemond.com because... I see parents and children each week who are struggling with the most basic behavioral problems and have no confidence in their abilities to solve problems.

My general feelings about John Rosemond's parenting and family philosophy: I love his straightforward approach to dealing with parenting issues and his strong desire to get parents back in charge of their families.
