My therapeutic orientation can be described as: (e.g., traditional, behavior modification, biblical, etc...please elaborate)

Primarily CBT, but borrow liberally from Haley, Madanes, Rosemond, Erickson, and Kevin Leman.

Any flea powder that kills a flea is a good powder.

My greatest therapeutic strength is: I'm empathic, I'm a good listener, I like good common sense problem-solving approaches that my patients and clients can understand and apply.

I am married/unmarried/currently separated/divorced. If married currently, is this your first marriage? If not, how many previous marriages? How long have you been married to your current spouse? I have been married to the same wonderful woman for 38 years. She has stuck by me through 22 years as a state trooper, in AZ, 14 years as a prison psychologist! We believe that marriage is a sacrament and hold life to be sacred.

I have children of my own. yes/no. Their ages are: They live with me/my ex/they are emancipated. Robert, 30 yrs, and Sarah, 29 yrs. I have three darling granddaughters, ages 9, 8, and 5 yrs.

I have registered with www.rosemond.com because... Regular column reader of John's. I look forward to his columns because I like his approaches to children's problems, and find solutions I can implement in my own practice. I did not initially seek to work with children, but living in rural Alaska has made me conscious of the community needs for this service.

My general feelings about John Rosemond's parenting and family philosophy: No psychobabble, no warm fuzzies, but straight forward problem solving approaches that I have not found with too many other writers. I believe he is ethical and honest in his approaches and his advice.
